Finns Try to Eliminate Reds in Their Talking

HELSINKI, FINLAND. — The Finns seem to have found something to talk about besides the Russians.

"Where," asked a Finn, "shall we have dinner?" Recalling his last trip to a restaurant here more than two years ago, a visitor replied, "Does it make any difference?"

The Finn smiled. "Food isn't rationed any more, you know." He was proud and justly so. They went to an extremely nice restaurant. Everything went beautifully, especially as fine a pair of lamb chops as you can find this side of Paris.

"During the war," said the Finn, "we didn't dance. We're doing it now."

Hours had passed and the visitor met a lot of Finns and still there hadn't been a word about Russia. It was left to him to bring it up.

"Oh, Russia," said a young engineer. "You Americans get too excited about the Russians. Look, we live beside them and we seem to be getting on."

"That," the visitor remarked, "was quite an observation for a Finn."

Raising Rabbits

Rabbit raising is an important industry in many parts of the country. The animals are raised primarily for meat and fur, but increasing numbers are being used for biological, laboratory, and other experimental purposes. The production of rabbit wool, a recent phase of the industry, is still in its infancy. Rabbits are excellent animals for 4-H Club, Future Farmer, and Boy Scout work. They also make ideal pets and will continue to be raised as a hobby. The industry lends itself to a wide range of possibilities, from small backyard units of three or four breeders for family meat supply to large commercial rabbitries of several hundred hutches.

Slow-Cook Veal

When planning a veal dish for a meal, count on plenty of time for the cooking. Long, slow cooking is the best way to bring out flavor in veal and to keep it from being tough. The moist type of cookery—braising with a little liquid in the pan, or pot-roasting—generaly gives the most tender and delicious veal product. Ground veal is generally used in patties, which are braised, or in a loaf, which is baked like any meat loaf. For the tastiest loaf, mix the veal with ground pork—about one-fourth as much pork as veal. The pork improves the flavor.

Forerunner of Unions

In ancient times, before trade and manufacturing were much developed, farming was regarded as the most important and honorable form of labor, according to the World Book encyclopedia. Traders and merchants were regarded as tricksters, not to be trusted. One of the main purposes of the guilds of traders and craftsmen developed during the latter part of the Middle Ages—which in many ways resembled trade unions—was to prove that their members were honest men, worthy of trust and honor.

Eyes for the Blind

The blind and near-blind may soon be able to read without the aid of Braille, which has been mastered by only about one-fifth of the nation's 200,000 sightless persons, the Better Vision institute recently reported. Three new reading aids have been developed, one depending on the sense of sound, one on touch, and one on vision—the latter for the partly-blind.

Residential Fires

Thirty-eight per cent or 252,458 of the 657,642 blazes in 1947 were residential fires—most of which could have been prevented. Smoking and careless use of matches continued to be the chief causes of home fires, accounting for 17 per cent of the total. Improperly constructed or old deteriorated chimneys, flues and stacks combined with sparks on roofs, accounted for 14 per cent notwithstanding the fact that there are literally hundreds of products available to the homeowner for preventing fires of this type. Many of these items are made from clay, the part of the earth itself that has resisted every deteriorating factor. Clay just won't burn.

Superphosphate Held Best For Sugar Beet Fertility

Ordinary superphosphate is the best source of phosphate when used as a fertilizer for sugar beets, wheat and barley, according to Dr. Sterling R. Olsen, USDA soil scientist and Robert Gardner, agronomist at the Colorado college experiment station.

Experiments on various fertilizers containing radioactive phosphorus, indicate that calcium metaphosphate was a close second.

Seed Treated

Better Seed For Better Crops

Seed treating serves a very important function by destroying disease germs and fungus growth and generally protects the seed against decaying in cold wet soil and the young seedling against damp-off during the early stages of its life.

Seed treating means better stands, therefore better yields and increased yields mean better profits.

High School Chatter....

Good evening, Mr. and Mrs. Appomattox, High School, and all the ships on Holliday Lake - let's go to press.

Flash.. Monday was the beginning of baseball practice for the A. H. S. boys, and things are shaping up in fine order. The boys look pretty good and they are hoping for a fine season.

Let's not miss the Canteen Party Friday night. It will be sponsored by the S. C. A. Come on out and join the fun.

A hearty welcome is extended by all the students of A. H. S. to our new pupil, Miss Barbara Ann Johnson (bubba, bubba).

Mrs. Morris was laid up with a bad, bad cold the first of the week. We were sorry to hear she was ill.

We suppose Joyce is enjoying herself, down yonder in that Florida sunshine. Don't we envy her. Ha, ha!

Bout time to travel down lover's lane and see who we see. We hear that Faye and Lois were delayed in getting home after church Sunday. Now wasn't that funny . .Did anyone see Alice Martin Saturday night? We did . . it was nothing new to see Helen Mae in a Plymouth Saturday night :: One of our fine looking young men in the 11th grade remarked the other day, "I am through with women." Wonder what's wrong? The dog-house is really rather crowded, don't you think, boys? Well, we're coming to the end of the lane; everything is kind of vacant down here.. let's put some wood on the fire, oops. . .

Our "personality last week was Florence Robertson. We're sure your guess was correct.

Now try this one: This boy (ah, that's one clue) is found in the 11th grade home room (sometimes in the 10th grade girls home room). He is pretty . . near the 5' 10" mark and weighs 150 lbs. Cranking tractors is an occupation he loves. One of his chief interests is farming and he is vice-president of the F. F. A. Club of Appomattox H. S. You should know by now, but if not, just look close at all the smiling faces you see and the one that's smiling the most will be him.

That's the top of the news as it looks from here, so long, folks.

SOIL CONSERVATION PROGRAM PLANNING

Budgeting land to produce what is needed without waste is just as important as budgeting income to buy things needed without any waste, says R. B. Bridgeforth, the chairman of the Virginia Production and Marketing Administration Committee.

"To meet our continuing need for food our land must be used to its maximum efficiency," he stated. "This means balanced production instead of a surplus of one crop and not enough of another . . or too much now and too little later. It is time now for farmers to think about the use they are going to make of their productive farmland in the years immediately ahead."

Coble Begins Buying Eggs From Producer

E. R. Coltrane, Executive Vice-President of Coble Dairy Products, Inc., announced today that facilities for collecting, handling, and distributing eggs have been added to the company's dairy operations.

Under the new program eggs will be collected daily on the company's milk routes to be graded, packaged and delivered to the consumer within a forty-eight hour period.

"North Caroline alone has a ready market for one and a half billion eggs annually," Mr. Coltrane stated. "Our program with a daily pick-up offers a vast potential market for egg producers since it will make available to the consumer a product that will be days fresher, thus building up the additional demand that always results from the distribution of a finer quality product."

Coble's Receiving Station here at Appomattox is an important link in the company's operations and a vital factor in the economy of this area.
